M.A. (SOCIOLOGY) SEMESTER - I

Paper No. 1 Classical Sociological Tradition

Total Marks: 100
Marks: Semester End Examination 70
Continuous Internal Evaluation 30

OBJECTIVE:

Industrial revolution and transformation of mode of production brought out dramatic and traumatic change in the traditional feudal structure of the societies in Europe, through the emergence of capitalism. The changes that were brought by these events which have had far-reaching effects on the economic and social systems of these societies that they commanded attenuation of thinkers. That gave rise to the discipline of sociology. Different thinkers, viewed the societal changes from different perspectives, presented their distinct analysis, casual and otherwise of these changes made efforts to highlight the different features of the emerging modern industrial capitalist society and also attempted to predict the future of this society. Some of them engaged their attention on the issues related to development of Sociology as a science. They laid down the theoretical foundations of Sociology on which edifice of modern sociological theories is erected. Besides, they also tried to analyze and interpret other sociological issues such as education, power structures, religion and the like. Among these Sociological thinkers prominent are Karl Marx, Emile Durkheim, Max Weber and Vilfredo Pareto.

Acquaintance with the writings of these four thinkers would equippe the students with theoretical insight to know, analyses and interpret the Social scenario around them and would also familiarize them with different sociological perspectives and theories. While teaching, emphasis should be on critical analysis of the writing of these four thinkers.

Marks: Semester End Examination 70
Continuous Internal Evaluation 30

> OBJECTIVE:

The course aims to provide knowledge and scholarship of sociological basis of environment and interface. it seeks to impart social skills in environmental concerns in order to understand the human suffering. As a prelude to it, the course focuses on 'environmental in sociological theory', both classical and contemporary. The course also aims at providing knowledge of the debate on environment and development with a focus on environmental justice, policy and action. The study of inter connections between environment and society has gained in enormous significance in recent times on account of the debilitating effects on the environment and society. In view of this, it is understandable that the focus of environmental studies has moved from sociology of environment to environmental sociology. The course is designed to focus on the environment issues in the perspective of environmental sociology.
